How to get from the airport to Freiburg im Breisgau from:

From Frankfurt (FRA)

This is the most convenient option, as many airlines offer direct flights from the U.S. to Frankfurt. You do not need a connecting flight to Basel if you fly into Frankfurt. Instead, use the following directions to get from your terminal to the train station:

- Terminal 1: Collect your luggage, clear customs, and follow the signs to the long-distance railway station (Fernbahnhof).
- Terminal 2: Collect your luggage, clear customs, and follow the signs to the Sky Line railway, which you will take to Terminal 1. From Terminal 1, follow the signs to the long-distance railway station (Fernbahnhof).

Buy a ticket from “FRA Frankfurt Airport” to “Freiburg im Breisgau.” The train ride takes about two hours and leaves once every hour. A one-way ticket costs about €80. You may have to change trains in Mannheim, where the train to Freiburg will likely be waiting for you on the same platform, opposite the train by which you arrived.

Because you will need to take a train to get to Freiburg, plan to purchase your train ticket at the airport. There are limited direct trains to Freiburg, so it is likely you will need to change trains in Mannheim. You will need to be fairly quick when changing trains, which is another good reason to travel light.

If you need assistance, airports and train stations have information desks with English-speaking staff who are there to help you.

If you'd like to investigate train schedules and reservations ahead of time, see www.bahn.de, which is available in English. Your destination is "Freiburg (Breisgau) Hbf."

From EuroAirport Basel (Bâle), Switzerland/Mulhouse, France (BSL)

Flights to Basel tend to be more expensive. There is a direct bus service, called the Freiburger Airport Bus, from EuroAirport Basel/Mulhouse to Freiburg's main train and bus stations (Hauptbahnhof). Basel's airport is literally divided in two (a Swiss and a French side) and the bus leaves from outside the arrival hall on the French side (Mulhouse). A one-way ticket costs €26 (round trip €42). You pay the driver in cash. The service runs about every one to two hours and takes one hour. There is no need to reserve a seat. For a schedule and costs for the Freiburger Airport Bus, visit

<http://www.freiburger-reisedienst.de/en/airportbus/information.php>

If you have to wait too long for the Freiburger Airport Bus, you can also catch bus number 50 at the airport to the Basel SBB (Basel railway station) in order to catch a train to Freiburg. This bus leaves from the Swiss side of the airport, runs frequently and takes about 13 minutes.

For more information, visit the Basel/Mulhouse airport website at

<http://www.euroairport.com/en/>

If you fly into Switzerland, you may be asked for proof of departure from Switzerland or for a copy of your residence permit. If questioned at the airport, inform the authorities that you will be applying for the German residence permit upon arrival in Freiburg.

From Zürich (ZRH)

If you arrive in Zürich, look for railway signs in the airport after you go through customs. There is a train station located right beneath the airport. Buy a one-way ticket from "Zurich Airport" to "Freiburg im Breisgau," which costs approximately €55. Trains run several times each hour and the journey takes between two and three hours, depending on the connection. You will have to change trains one or two times.

For more information on the Zürich airport, visit

<http://www.zurich-airport.com/>

From Stuttgart (STR)

If you arrive in Stuttgart, follow the railway signs to the S-Bahn (suburban train) after going through airport customs. Buy a ticket from STR Stuttgart Airport to the Hauptbahnhof (central train station). Take the S2 or S3 train from the airport (Flughafen) in the direction of Backnang (S2), or Schorndorf (S3), and get off at the Hauptbahnhof. Buy a one-way ticket from Stuttgart Hauptbahnhof to Freiburg im Breisgau, which starts at approximately €55. Trains to Freiburg run about every hour throughout the day, and may require changing trains in Karlsruhe. The trip takes approximately two hours.

Restaurants

Martin's Brau

Located in the town center near the tower, this brew pub is a casual, inexpensive location to the gather in. Kaiser-Joseph-Strass3 237

Restaurant Dattler

Located on the Schloßberg (near to Freiburg's city center) from where you have a picturesque view over the old Freiburg city center. Elegant ambience and delicious cuisine, partly traditional "Badisch"-regional food, are combined in this institution. www.dattler.de

Greiffenegg

As the Dattler, this restaurant is also located on Schloßberg. So the view is remarkable. The restaurant is specialized for larger group events (as also the Dattler). The great beer garden called Kastaniengarten is probably the most popular one in Freiburg. www.greiffenegg.de

Feierling Brauhaus und Biergarten

Gerberau 11/15. Home-brewed beer, an old haunt of IES students! Shady beer garden for hot summer days and evenings, and house brewery on 3 levels for rainy days and cold evenings: www.feierling.de

Oma's Küche

Hildastrasse 66. A nice place for having regional food. There is outdoor seating, Sunday brunch and is very popular with IES students: www.omas-kueche.de

Schlappen

Löwenstrasse 2. This is a place that's always crowded but worth it. There is good food and drink and it's open until 3 am on Fridays and Saturdays. Smoking is allowed in the back room: www.schlappen.com
