AH 340 FROM MONUMENT TO MEMORIAL: WAR, TRAUMA AND MEMORY IN CENTRAL EUROPE’S PUBLIC SPACES
IES Abroad Vienna

DESCRIPTION:
This course provides a critical investigation of the history, forms, contexts, and reception of memorials in Central Europe, particularly Vienna. The purpose of the course is not only to provide an overview of the methods for creating public memorials throughout history, but also to compare how the intentions surrounding memorials, and the expectations for the collective value of public space, have changed over time. Because European soil is deeply layered with memorials of all kinds, our particular focus will be public monuments dedicated to war and trauma. Memorials of this kind date back to antiquity, but also include so-called counter-monuments, which are some of the most important public art being created today. Even as Europe is having in many places a belated first reckoning with its Nazi experience, the wages of communism are also being at last publicly explored. There has never been a more complex moment for the creation of public memory in central Europe, nor a better launching point for such a conversation than Vienna.

Because Vienna stands at the center of Hitler’s Reich, and at the western edge of the Iron Curtain, it is uniquely poised for the exploration of two of modern history’s most laden moments. This course will include visits to local monuments that embrace the entire history of memory, in all of its complexity (the Plague Column, the Votivkirche, the Memorial to the Victims of Fascism, the Judenplatz Memorial). We will also discuss memorial sites further afield in Germany, Hungary, France, and the US. The course will include two major site visits outside Vienna, dedicated to key historical moments. A weekend trip to Budapest will take in memorials to both the Holocaust and to the victims of Communism against the backdrop of Hungary’s current political structure. A trip to the Mauthausen concentration camp near Linz will examine the changing face of one of Europe’s best-preserved concentration camps.

Using recent scholarship in a growing area of art historical study, this course will attempt to answer the questions: What does it mean to attempt to create public memory? Whose experiences are addressed, and how? How have the intentions of public memorials changed along with their forms? How have recent memorials attempted to address the changing shape of politics in the modern age (pluralistic, global)? How are memorial spaces selected, and how does the presence of a memorial shape public space? What kinds of groups or experiences are excluded from public memory in the process of creating memorials?

Course study of more far-flung monuments can be linked with the examination of materials within Vienna to create a balance of classroom and site visit, or theory and direct experience.

CREDITS: 3 credits

CONTACT HOURS: 45 hours

LANGUAGE OF INSTRUCTION: English

PREREQUISITES: College-level or AP course in Western and/or European History or Art History.

METHOD OF PRESENTATION:
Lecture and discussion format, with excursions to see many of the works under consideration in person. Lecture centers around presentation of slides in digital form; class participation is invited, often involving discussion of relevant readings. Where possible we will study works first-hand, in class visits to monuments in Vienna, and field trips to Budapest and Mauthausen. Readings will be posted on Moodle, as will handouts such as slide lists.

REQUIRED WORK AND FORM OF ASSESSMENT:
- Site paper - 15%
- Site Journal - 10%
- Midterm exam - 20%
- Analysis paper - 25%
- Final exam - 20%
- Class participation - 10%

Site Paper:
Writing an initial site paper (4 pages) on a local monument.

Site Journal:
Composing a semester-long journal of reactions to site visits, including independent excursions (10 pages, minimum 6 sites)

Analysis Paper:
Writing an analysis paper that involves both close looking and basic research on a monument or site (8 pages; topics to be assigned).

Midterm & Final Exam:
Taking an in-class midterm exam; taking a written final exam.

Class Participation:
Active participation in class discussions, active participation in site visits and on-site discussions & completion of all readings in time for class.

LEARNING OUTCOMES:
By the end of the course students will be able to:
- demonstrate a basic understanding of the forms and purposes of European monuments from antiquity to the present day
- characterize the theoretical framework scholars have used to describe memorials;
- evaluate the intentions of artists who have created key European memorials and communities that have commissioned them;
- analyze the visual and spatial rhetoric used by artists and institutions (including political forces) to turn historical locations into sites of memory;
- describe and analyze the limitations of monuments as spaces of public memory.

ATTENDANCE POLICY:
Consistent and regular attendance and participation is required in accordance with Center policy. Students should be in class, on time, prepared, and attentive. Laptops are permitted for note-taking exclusively. Texting in class is not tolerated.

CONTENT:

Beginning with ancient monuments, the course will address such questions as: What is the role of the public memorial through history? What kinds of forms were associated with memorials in the past, as opposed to today, and why? How have the intentions of public memorials evolved over time? How do memorials address awful suffering or terrible atrocities, given that they also have to have some public viability? How do memorials balance collective loss with individual suffering? Or, the experiences of those who experienced an event with future generations who did not? Whose narratives have been excluded from memorials, whether intentionally or not? How do contemporary memorials attempt to address the limitations of previous models? Are memorials ever truly specific to the thing they memorialize (the Holocaust, communism)? What are the limits of a memorial’s effectiveness?
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Week</th>
<th>Required Reading:</th>
</tr>
</thead>
</table>
- Miles, “The Contradictions of Public Art,” pp. 84-103
- Holtorf, “Megaliths, Monumentality and Memory,” pp. 45-66
| Week 3 | - Winter, Ch. 4, "War Memorials and the Mourning Process,” pp. 78-116.
| Week 4 | - Young, “Memory and Counter-Memory: The End of the Monument in Germany,” pp. 1-10.
- Rosenfeld, “Memory and the Museum: Munich’s Struggle to Create a Documentation Center for the History of National Socialism,” pp. 163-184.
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Week 5</th>
<th>• Midterm Exam</th>
<th>War II, and the Holocaust in Germany,” pp.102-147.</th>
</tr>
</thead>
</table>
| Week 6 | • Holocaust Memorials in Europe | Required Reading:
Recommended Reading:
- Haakenson, “(In)Visible Trauma: Michael Elmgreen and Ingar Dragset’s Memorial to the Homosexuals Persecuted under the National Socialist Regime,” in Niven and Paver, eds. Memorialization in Germany since 1945, pp. 146-156. |
| Week 7 | • Holocaust Memorials in Vienna: “Steine der Erinnerung,” Hrdlicka, Whiteread
• Class excursions to Albertinaplatz, Judenplatz, 2nd District | Required Reading:
| Week 8 | • Monuments to Communism in Budapest and Elsewhere
• Class excursion to Budapest | Required Reading:
- James, Imagining Postcommunism, p. 3-20, 39-60, 113-144.
Recommended Reading:
| Week 9 | • Budapest: Shoes on the Danube Bank, Memorial to the Victims of German Invasion, Memorial to the Revolution of 1956, Statue Park | Required Reading:
- James, Imagining Post-Communism, pp. 21-38, 61-81, 145-165.
| Week 10 | • Preserving Concentration Camps: Auschwitz and Mauthausen | Required Reading: |
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Week 11</th>
<th>Week 12</th>
<th>Reading:</th>
</tr>
</thead>
</table>
| • Class excursion to Mauthausen concentration camp
• Analysis paper due     | • Final Exam                | • Young, ed., Holocaust Memorials in History: The Art of Memory, pp. 169-175, 175-184, 185-187 |
|                            |                            | • Young, “Austria’s Ambivalent Memory,” pp. 91-112.                        |
|                            |                            | • American Comparisons: WTC, Oklahoma City

COURSE-RELATED TRIPS:
- Soviet War Memorial, Pestsäule, Votivkirche (in Vienna)
- Museum of Military History (Vienna)
- Albertinaplatz, Judenplatz, 2nd District
- Budapest
- Mauthausen concentration camp

REQUIRED READINGS:
• Young, James E., “Memory and Counter-Memory: The End of the Monument in Germany,” Harvard Design Magazine, No. 9 (2009), pp. 1-10.

RECOMMENDED READINGS:
• Haakenson, Thomas O., “(In)Visible Trauma: Michael Elmgreen and Ingar Dragset’s Memorial to the Homosexuals Persecuted under the National Socialist Regime,” in Niven, Bill and Chloe Paver, eds., Memorialization in Germany since 1945, Basingstoke, UK; NY: Palgrave Macmillan, 2009, pp. 146-156.