IB/MG 329 BUSINESS ETHICS
IES Abroad Nice

DESCRIPTION:
Business ethics do not deal with what is legal, but with the application of moral standards to business decisions. The majority of moral standards relate to personal behavior, which is not necessarily legislated and varies according to culture differences. This course enables students to understand the role of business ethics from an organizational and decision-making perspective. It is designed to demonstrate how to integrate ethics and responsibility into business decisions; to trace the historical foundations and evolution of business ethics; to examine the relationship between stakeholder orientation and corporate social responsibility; and to explore ethical business issues such as conflicts of interest, bribery, fraud, insider trading and intellectual property rights.

The course is designed to:
- Provide a comprehensive framework for ethical decision-making in business
- Introduce leadership styles that promote an ethical culture
- Explain how moral philosophies and values influence individual and group decisions
- Examine the influence of corporate culture on business ethics
- Determine how leadership, power, and motivation relate to ethical decision-making in organizations
- Assess organizational structure and its relationship to business ethics
- Prepare students to implement and audit ethics programs

A case-study approach to business ethics gives students the opportunity to apply theory to practical business situations against the backdrop of one of the world’s financial capitals. As the financial and economic crisis has led to world-wide political reactions based on macro-economic development on a global scale, students are invited in this course to examine one of the most challenging times of global business development and ethics. The course reflects new ideas and policies under development in the European Union and the US and explores the revival of humanistic management principles based on corporate eco-social business ethics and missions.

We will use annual and sustainability reports and other actual company information to examine and evaluate global companies dealing with complex business ethics issues that are a priority in twenty-first-century companies.

CREDITS: 3

CONTACT HOURS: 45

LANGUAGE OF INSTRUCTION: English

PREREQUISITES: None

METHOD OF PRESENTATION:
Lectures
Part of each class will consist of discussions of key themes. The students will be provided with the texts to read for each class - distributed through Moodle -, together with a list of reading questions designed to focus their attention on key points and concepts in the texts. These texts will form the basis of the class discussions.

Class Discussions and Student Presentations
In-class presentations will serve to illustrate the issues presented in the lectures, the readings and the research paper work. Additional reading may be assigned during the course of the semester.

Role playing
Students simulate via interactive role-play-cases business ethics situations to experience and and practice their ethical decision making.

Group and individual work
Students will work on texts or in-class presentations individually or in groups up to 3 students.
Video and Film Presentations
Screening of film extracts or entire movies. Students will be provided with background information about the films and a list of questions to consider when they view them.

REQUIRED WORK AND FORM OF ASSESSMENT:
- Course Participation - 10%
- Press Reviews and Oral Presentations - 15%
- Midterm Exam - 20%
- Final exam - 25%
- Research Paper Draft - 10%
- Final Research Paper and Presentation - 20%

Course participation
Students will be expected to come to class prepared and to participate actively in class discussions with relevant, original contribution and implications acquired through reading and analysis of texts and videos.

Midterm Exam
This Midterm exam will be based on lectures and complementary reading and will use different formats to assess students’ progress towards the learning outcomes in the first half of the course. The question formats will include essay questions, multiple choice questions, short answer questions and justified True/False questions.

Final Exam
The Final exam will be based on lectures and complementary reading and will use different formats to assess students’ progress towards the learning outcomes of the entire course. The question formats will include essay questions, multiple choice questions, short answer questions and justified True/False questions.

Research Paper
Assignments of research paper on companies and due dates will be determined at the beginning of the term. With instructors guidance, students working in groups of 2 will select a company (with at least subsidiaries) based in the South of France and collect actual company information including it’s vision, mission and sustainability reports. Then, students will analyse the company’s ethics and report and present their findings in class. The reports are completed throughout the semester (document of 15 pages, double-spaced; standard margins and fonts). Students will first submit the selected company by week 4 and a draft (week 8). After receiving comments from the instructor, the students will then work on the final version of their research paper (submitted on week 13) and present their findings within a powerpoint presentation with oral explanations in class (week 14). The research paper will be evaluated by taking into account the analytical, organisational and formalistic quality of the work as well as the extent to which the students have effectively incorporated the instructors comments on the draft.

Other
Each week, one student will present a press review by selecting a press article on the topic covered during the week. The students will also in turn present a short summary of the assigned readings which will be discussed in class.

GRADING:
The following numeric grading scale is applied:
